

Louve Cooper, a featured author in the Tamar Stories Sisterhood, has left an indelible mark on readers' hearts. Born and raised in Memphis, TN, Louve's life has been a testament to resilience and unwavering faith.

On November 1, 1980, Louve entered the world, and her journey began. Her spiritual path took a significant turn on November 2, 1993, when she was baptized at her home church, South Parkway East COC. But it was on February 26, 2023, that Louve experienced a profound moment—baptism in the Jordan River in Jerusalem. These milestones shaped her identity and purpose.

Louve's commitment to her faith remains steadfast. As a faithful member of Northwest COC in Southaven, MS, under the guidance of Pastor Tradanius Beard, she continues to grow spiritually. Her favorite Bible verse, James 1:2-3, echoes her resilience: "Count it all joy." While Louve is currently single, she hopes to find a husband. Family is at the core of Louve's heart. She cherishes her three beautiful daughters and her three grandchildren. Additionally, she cares for a set of twin girls whom she's had since birth.

Louve's passion extends beyond words; she captures life's moments as a professional photographer. Through her lens, she immortalizes joy, love, and inspiration. During the pandemic, Louve launched her blog, "Daily Dose of Louve," on Facebook. Her purpose is clear: to encourage and impact lives globally. Fear and faith cannot coexist, and Louve chooses faith. Every trial she faces becomes an opportunity to be a light for others. Motivated by a mustard seed, Louve believes she can conquer anything. Her legacy: LOVE. She embodies the virtuous woman, leaving a trail of joy wherever she goes.
